

Annette Tacconelli

As a professional studio artist, Annette Tacconelli creates intimate, beaded sculptures, utilizing traditional fiber techniques in non-traditional ways. She has exhibited extensively nationally and internationally. Her collectors range from major Art Museum Board members to a local construction company.

As an arts educator and mentor, Annette's philosophy centers around the cultivation of bravery and self-awareness through artful, spiritual practice. For over twenty five years, she has taught art/intuitive creativity workshops around the world, intensive fiber/fine arts programs in NYC schools and is dedicated to mentoring private students of all ages in her own Brooklyn studio. Annette teaches a broad spectrum of content (fine art, fine craft, performance art, public art, art/cultural history) and skilled techniques (needle arts, fiber arts, drawing, painting, sculpting) and life practices (meditation, journaling, intuition/creativity, studio practices).

Ruffle Eating
Annette Tacconelli
Found metal, seed beads, thread; sculptural peyote stitch

Promising
Annette Tacconelli
Found painted metal (old fence post), seed beads, thread, cotton; clustered fringe