

Lori DuBois-Caruso

DuBois, born into a family of artists within the suburbs of New York, studied Marketing at Dominican College in Orangeburg, New York. After a successful 20 year career in graphic design at SONY, DuBois picked up a brush to paint and rekindled her passion for abstract art. This reunion brought new direction and focus for her life's work and the next chapter. In her current abstract painting career, she has received a great deal of notice and encouragement from her patrons and peers. Her works in acrylic are found in private collections, as well as commissioned works for the Architectural Digest Home Design Show. Her personal signature style shines through in her usage of fluid color and movement.

Now residing in Connecticut, she enjoys the coastal backdrop of New England. Her work is featured in local venues. She enjoys organizing charitable art events advocating "The Art of Giving."
